DATE: 31st December, 2025

VENUE: Shankarbhuvan

Bhavan’s Sheth R.A. College of Science, through the active involvement of its NCC and NSS volunteers, carried out an extensive survey in slum areas to assess the problems encountered by residents and the insufficiency of basic civic amenities. The primary aim of the survey was to gain first-hand insight into grassroots issues and to explore possible solutions. During the survey, volunteers interacted closely with local residents and gathered detailed information regarding challenges related to sanitation, drinking water, healthcare, education, electricity, drainage, housing, and other essential services. As a result of this exercise, nearly 20 significant issues were identified. The survey played a vital role in raising awareness about the living conditions in slum communities and emphasized the immediate need for improved infrastructure and facilities. The data collected will be shared with relevant authorities and social organizations to facilitate necessary corrective actions. This initiative showcased the strong sense of social commitment and community service upheld by the NCC and NSS volunteers, who made earnest efforts toward the welfare of slum area residents.
